Washington, D.C.

Dear General Bedell Smith,

I have a house in Capri, Italy, which in the last war I turned over to General Donovan, as a rest camp. It gave a great many tired soldiers, I believe, a great deal of pleasure from the letters that I received.

I should like to offer this house again to you, in the event there is a third world war. But my one stipulation is that I should be given the job of running this place myself, in any official capacity which you suggest, as I feel I know Capri so well and all the Island people, that I feel that I would be of more value there.

In the last war I was on the Board of Directors of the Women's Military Services Club for the Waacs and Waves, but I would much prefer having the work I have suggested to you, in the event of another war.

With my best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Mona Williams
